Hi Tatyana,

I know it has been a long week for you, hang in there.

Please let me know the status of all of the shipments coming into St. Petersburg, I received the below email from Jason today and have also been hearing things through the grape vine but am not sure of the most up to date and accurate story, could you please provide us with a summary of where we stand and if you feel like we will still be able to achieve an opening date of Next weekend.

After reading the email below I think we all realize that at this point it is critical that the customs officials have the best impression of our companies, our Exhibition and the educational 1st class museum quality exhibition that we are about to present. Do you have English catalogs or photographs of the exhibition that can be used to better explain the Exhibition. If necessary, could we have the Russian doctor that is going to be the exhibition spokesperson speak to the customs officials about the importance of these types of exhibitions and the high quality with which we present ours. Also, I would like to make sure that everyone in Russia is aware that Judy Geller is in St. Petersburg and if need be, could act as a representative for Premier in any discussions about the scientific and educational aspects of the exhibition. Judy is the Author of the catalog as well as one of the Creators of the Exhibition.

Please let us know if there is anything we can do from our end.

Kind Regards and good luck this weekend and Monday morning.

Tom

So we are not going to be getting any containers until at least Monday. One of the high ranking customs officials here has deemed the show immoral and is not letting the show clear customs. This was from Tatyanna, she did say though that a contact at the Russian shipping agency that was used is going to talk with the customs agent over the weekend to see what can be worked out. We are continuing moving forward with what we can do at the venue; making the Verlock cables and getting our stuff organized so that we are ready WHEN things arrive. (that's my optimism showing through)
John when does your flight leave? When would be a good time to call you today? I have a question or two for you.
